Chapter 1 by Phantim

Hey guys, Phantim here! Your super spooky admin!
Today, though, I could use your help.

How would you describe StoryWars.net to your friends, or someone who had never been on the site before?

Right now we advertise as:

"Collaborative and competitive writing

Want to write stories together? On Story Wars writers submit drafts to stories, readers chose their favorite drafts to build a story. "

Do you agree? Is it something more, something less?

A great place for writers of all skill levels and ages? A place where you can have you ideas expanded and added on to? A place were authors battle against time and each other to win chapters and build stories? Or just a fun place to write silly stories with friends? An amazingly creative and collaborative literary thrill ride? Let us know! Write a 2 or 3 sentence explanation for what Story Wars is to you!

Story Wars is a place where random writers with amazing ideas in their head come to express their thoughts.

Any person can pitch an idea and create a story, but the moment the story is published, it is no longer truly theirs, but it is adopted by the Story Wars Community. Different users can write a chapter to a story that they like and want to contribute to. The twist is that for your chapter to be official, it has to be voted in. By going up against different authors, you actually have to try. Because of that, you slowly start to become a better writer.

The voting system is very effective. While voting for a new chapter, the author of the draft that you are voting on is not available. This causes an unbiased vote, and you vote for the chapter that you believe is the best, and not for a draft that has a successful writer's name on it. The name of the author who won the winning chapter will be available after they won.

If you find an author that you look up to or has nice writing, you can follow them so you can see what books they're participating in and so they know that they're appreciated.

In Story Wars, you aren't constantly nagged to finish a story. If you want to stop writing a certain book, you can. You can give it to the hands of the community, and watch it flourish into something beautiful.

Everyone on Story Wars that I've met has been very supportive. We like to joke around and make each other better writers.

In short, Story Wars is a place that challenges you to be the best that you can be, while having fun and enjoying the experience.

Chapter 3 by The Gerbil Overlord (Does Not Exist)- is attempting to be the world's first juggler who can type at the same time. I won't be on as often because I have school, so if you sent me a challenge, that's why I haven't answered it. (Semi-Retired But Not Really)

Story Wars is a website that is both educational and fun. All types of people can come here and contribute. I love Story Wars because it's fun to see where people will take your story. It will morph into something unexpected but equally incredible in the hands of other writers.

Also, the voting system is really cool. If you like a chapter, you can vote for it. If more people like that draft, it becomes official. By going up against different authors, you actually have to try. Because of that, you slowly start to become a better writer.

It's also a great place to cut loose and use your creativity. Each draft is good, no matter how silly. You can often find silly stories that started serious and drifted off in a whole new direction. Story Wars is basically a giant notebook. Each member has a pencil, and no erasers are permitted. It's pure, unrestrained creativity reduced to lines of code and millions of words. I hope that everyone who stumbles across this site reads this story and tries it for themselves.

(Story Wars is really that awesome.)
